THE FACTS

- For the body to obtain essential energy, proper breakdown of food is required to absorb nutrients. The gastrointestinal tract secretes enzymes for this purpose, but as we age our ability to make use of these enzymes may decrease. A supplement can help to augment the body's enzyme supply.*
- The primary source of digestive enzymes is from the food we eat. However, typical food preparation techniques (cooking or processing) apply heat that destroys much of these natural compounds.
- Specific digestive enzymes act on different types of macronutrients: fats, proteins, carbohydrates and fiber. Many digestive supplements provide an enzyme that reacts with one form of macronutrient. Kenzen Digestion Complex 4-20 is a combination of ingredients from each of these categories, to support the assimilation of all nutrients.*
- The source material for Kenzen Digestion Complex 4-20 is a variety of foods that are naturally grown, in regions where the soils are not depleted by decades of commercial farming. This helps to ensure that more of the natural, whole-food nutrients are present.*
- By optimizing absorption, Kenzen Digestion Complex 4-20 also provides more rapid access to nutrients, allowing the body to convert this fuel into energy more quickly.*
- When food compounds are incompletely broken down, fermentation may occur, which results in bloating and gas. Enzymatic support can help minimize fermentation.*
- Supplementing the body's digestive processes can also promote a feeling of increased energy, by freeing up more metabolic resources to be afforded to cell repair and replacement and immune system support.*
- Kenzen Digestion Complex 4-20 features organic, natural ingredients including amino acids, proteins, vegetable fiber- and cellulose-based enzymes. This product contains no animal products. Vegetable-derived ingredients assist the body's functions more efficiently, safely and gently.*
